

...The Alameda...

As a cultural crossroads, San Antonio is uniquely positioned to be home to a national center specifically dedicated to address the social, cultural, and educational needs of the Latino community while providing the resources and programming to engage multi-cultural understanding. The Alameda is the only organization in the United States that maintains formal affiliation agreements with the Smithsonian Institution and the Kennedy Center.

Our goals are:

- To raise the artistic and educational standards for audiences who reside in and visit San Antonio
- To challenge, inspire, and educate
- To reach out to broad, new audiences
- To provide meaningful and rewarding opportunities for advancement in the arts and education
- To become the premier national center for Latino arts and culture in the United States

It is well documented that exposure to art education helps youth to develop self-esteem, self expression, critical thinking skills, cooperation and appreciation of the work of others. These skills are vital to the success of their futures, reinforcing other disciplines such as reading, writing, social studies, even science and math. Our fast changing environment requires that future leaders be creative and imaginative in problem-solving. These skills are best learned by students involved in art education.

“Creaciones de Papel”

“Creaciones de Papel” or “Paper Creations” covers a variety of paper cutting and paper folding techniques to create visually stunning sculptures. The pieces created in the workshop will be placed on display in The Alameda 4th Floor Gallery.

There are two opportunities to participate in this workshop. Cost: $40.00 for the workshop, which includes instruction and supplies.
